Prevention services

The Prevention department at the WCB is pleased to offer a variety of safety programs and assistance at no cost to employers and workers.

Young worker safety awareness

The WCB youth coordinator educates young people about the importance of working safely. The coordinator delivers safety education to youth and employers throughout Saskatchewan.

Computer Workstation Assessment Training (6 hours)

Developed by the Prevention department, the Saskatchewan WCB and Occupational Health and Safety, the Computer Workstation Assessment Training (CWAT) course is available to interested workplaces. Check the WorkSafe Saskatchewan website or contact Prevention for course dates.

There is no cost to participants for attending the CWAT course.

Effective Return to Work (2 days)

This course gives participants detailed information on a variety of concepts relating to RTW. It focuses on RTW within the context of the Saskatchewan WCB. Participants will leave the course with tools to use back at the workplace: a reference guide, sample forms, procedures and policies.

The workshop enhances the skills of management, supervisors, safety professionals and those responsible for the development, implementation and administration of a RTW program. When completed, participants will have the knowledge base and resources necessary to develop a RTW program at their own workplace.

WorkSafe Saskatchewan* Safe Employer and Safe Worker awards

The Safe Employer and Safe Worker awards acknowledge those who have a commitment to safety in the workplace and demonstrate innovative leadership in workplace safety.

WHMIS online training for Saskatchewan workers

WorkSafe Saskatchewan, in association with the Canadian Centre for Occupational Health and Safety (CCOHS), has developed an online course that focuses on the general aspects of WHMIS training.

Visit www.worksafesask.ca to register. Note: A $10 registration fee is required (payable to CCOHS by credit card using the link on the website).
